Women with equal mental capability are not capable of having a son.

My Opinion

There has been a perpetual emphasis on women's education, with a focus on providing equal opportunities to men and women. However, this has led to a skewed perspective that women are inferior to men. The concept of 'women's rights' has been misinterpreted, often leading to the belief that women are not as capable as men.

In my opinion, the emphasis should be on empowering women to reach their full potential, rather than focusing solely on their roles as mothers. Women should be encouraged to pursue their passions and contribute to society in their own unique ways.

It is important to recognize the inherent differences between men and women, while also promoting the idea that these differences are not a measure of their abilities. Women should be given the same opportunities as men to achieve their goals and make their mark in the world.

Ultimately, the goal should be to create a society that values and respects all individuals, regardless of their gender.
